Editorial Review

From the Author

As a member of multiple book clubs for more than a decade, I've hosted many meetings for up to 14 people. This planning guide reflects the kind of information I would like to have had as I planned each gathering.

I am the author of Book by Book: The Complete Guide to Creating Mother-Daughter Book Clubs (Seal Press, October 2009), and the creator of Mother Daughter Book Club.com, where I post regular features of interest to book club members and other readers.

The recommendations here are designed to work with multiple age groups and vary in their difficulty to implement. Most of the suggestions work well for mother-daughter book clubs and kids book clubs, whether those groups meet at homes, schools or libraries.

If you have questions or concerns about anything you read here, please send me a note at info@motherdaughterbookclub.com.

I welcome feedback. And if you have other titles to recommend for future offerings, I'm happy to receive your suggestions.

Best regards,
Cindy Hudson

About the Author

Cindy Hudson likes to believe she instilled a love of reading in her daughters from the time they were born, reading board books and interactive books like "Pat the Bunny" to them. As her daughters have grown, her greatest pleasure has been to settle onto the couch with one or both of them by her side and spend time reading with them. She cherishes her two mother-daughter book clubs for the ways they have strengthened her relationship with her girls and for the new friendships they have brought her. She also advocates for adult book clubs and is in a reading group with her husband.

Hudson is the author of Book by Book: The Complete Guide to Creating Mother-Daughter Book Clubs (Seal Press, October 2009), a mother-daughter book club consultant, journalist, writer, and editor. She lives in Portland, Oregon, with her husband and two daughters. She has more than twenty years experience as a marketing and public relations professional.
